By Joseph E. D'Amico

A group of bishops in the Philippines has told General Miriam that her appointment as commander of the U.S. Southern Command is a problem for the country's morality. The bishops, who are part of the Philippine Bishops' Conference, have expressed their concerns to the general and have called for her to be removed from the position.

The bishops' statement came at a time when the general was preparing to leave the Philippines. The bishops' concerns were based on the general's past involvement in the Philippines and on her appointment to a position of high authority in the United States.

Gov't raises alarm for 3 radioactive capsules

MANILA (PNA) — The Philippine Nuclear Research Institute (PNRI) alerted the public that it has found three radioactive capsules containing unknown substances that were pilfered from its laboratory.

The capsules with the unknown contents were reportedly stolen from the abandoned Manila City Hall from police to smuggle them into the country. The capsules were found in a trash can in a room used as the Philippine Nuclear Research Institute.

PNRI is worried that the capsules could be used to make atomic bombs or for other purposes.

The capsules are small and appear to be made of metal and contain a powder. The capsules were found in a trash can in a room used as the Philippine Nuclear Research Institute.

Unlike 9/11, Katrina has brought division in US, observers say

By Andrew Rossow

WASHINGTON—The 10th anniversary of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks will be marked with a somber mood, but not one of division, as the nation looks back on the events of Sept. 11, 2001, and the impact they had on the world.

That mood, say many observers, is a far cry from the mood that greeted the Sept. 11 attacks. At that time, the nation was united in its grief and its anger.

But now, the mood is different.

Observers say that the Sept. 11 attacks were a unifying event, but the Sept. 11 attacks were not.

Language doesn't equal morality

REBECCA J. OF 10
BALABALA "Linguistic
relativity" is a theory that suggests that the language we speak influences the way we think and feel. It is a theory that has been around for a long time, but it is still being debated. Some people believe that language shapes the way we think, while others believe that it is just a tool we use to communicate. I am not that unconcerned about the debate, but I am concerned about the way we use language to describe and understand the world around us.

Jeep group set to strike Monday vs VAT on fuel

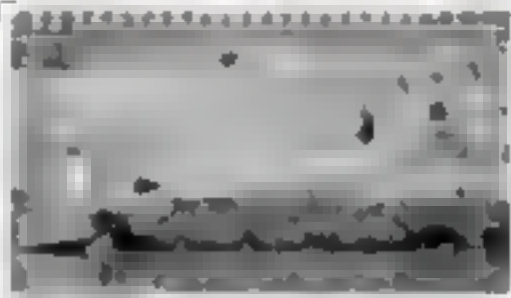

By Dennis S. Reyes

MANILA, Sept. 10 (AP) — A group of jeepney drivers in Manila is planning to strike on Monday to protest against a proposed 10 percent value-added tax (VAT) on fuel. The group, known as the Jeepney Drivers' Association, has been demanding that the government exempt fuel from VAT since 1993. They say the tax will increase the cost of fuel and, consequently, the fares for passengers. The government, however, insists that the tax is necessary to generate revenue for the state. The strike is expected to be one of the largest in the country's history.

No end to row over lit gates

By Joseph B. Lio

MANILA, Sept. 10 (AP) — The row over the closure of the Manila-Luzon Express (MLE) gates at the Manila International Airport (MIA) continued Tuesday. The MLE, a private company, has been operating the gates since 1995. The airport authority, however, has been demanding that the gates be opened to other airlines. The MLE claims that the gates are its property and that it has invested heavily in their maintenance. The airport authority, on the other hand, says that the gates are part of the airport's infrastructure and that they should be open to all airlines. The dispute has led to a series of legal battles and has caused significant delays in flight operations.

Protesters gathered in front of the Department of Justice building in Manila to demand the release of a man accused of a crime.

Philippines: A Country of Contrasts

Philippines: A Country of Contrasts

The Philippines is a country of contrasts. It is a country of rich culture and history, but it is also a country of poverty and inequality. It is a country of natural beauty and resources, but it is also a country of environmental degradation and pollution. It is a country of progress and development, but it is also a country of corruption and crime. The Philippines is a country of many faces, and it is a country that is always changing.

In a crowded room, it's hard to catch the eye. But when you stand out, you can't help but notice. And that's exactly what Darna is doing. The 25-year-old actress is the only woman in the cast of the new TV series Star Trek: Voyager to have a solo episode. In "The Voyager" (Oct. 10), she plays the character's first solo mission, a journey that takes her to the edge of the galaxy.

It's a role that's as challenging as it is exciting. "I've never been in a solo episode before," says Darna. "It's a great feeling. I'm excited to see what the audience thinks of it." The episode is a tribute to the original Trek series, which inspired her to become an actress.

Darna's character, Neelix, is a Klingon who has been stranded on the planet of the B'Pol. He is a complex character, one who is both a warrior and a diplomat.

These findings suggest that the use of a single, standardized, and validated instrument to assess the impact of a program is a more reliable and valid method than the use of multiple, non-standardized, and non-validated instruments. The use of a single, standardized, and validated instrument also allows for the comparison of results across studies and programs.

There is a growing body of research that suggests that the use of social media can be a powerful tool for improving mental health outcomes. For example, a study published in the Journal of Mental Health found that individuals who used social media to connect with others who had similar experiences with mental health issues reported higher levels of social support and lower levels of isolation. Additionally, a study published in the Journal of the American Academy of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry found that the use of social media by adolescents with mental health issues was associated with improved adherence to treatment and better overall outcomes.

That's not the story a recent researcher told. In fact, he pointed to two simple observations that could explain the big drop in 1989. A major factor, he said, could have been increased use of more potent cocaine products.

The estimated loss of money when a worker has difficulty in performing a job is approximately 10 percent of the worker's salary.
